The title "the Lamb" so frequently given to the Lord Jesus in Scripture is first of all descriptive of His work — that of being a sacrifice for our sin. When a sinning Israelite wanted to get right with God, it was the blood of a lamb (sometimes that of a goat) which had to be shed and sprinkled on the altar. Jesus is the divine fulfillment of all those lambs that men offered — the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. But the title "the Lamb" has a deeper meaning. It ...

The Blood of the Lamb influenced me, and I didn't even read it until now. I read a legion of books that clearly wouldn't have happened without this book. As a result, I was a few steps ahead on a lot of the plot twists . . . except for the last one at the end of the book. That shocked and disturbed me, which is very difficult to do.

~~The Blood of the Lamb by Thomas F. Monteleone~~

The sin offering (Lev. 4) was peculiar in that some of the animal's blood was smeared on the altar or sprinkled inside the tabernacle or temple. This blood cleansed the tabernacle from the pollution of sin. Sin does not just make one guilty before God or make Him angry, it also makes places and people unclean and thus unfit for God to dwell in.
